The C.I.A. has been resisting Congress regarding the release of thousands of classified documents that ostensibly further document U.S. collusion with Nazi war criminals (the official apologetic is that both the Soviets and the U.S. assumed Nazi war criminals for their intelligence value as the Cold War began).

According to a recent report by Amnesty International, as many as 1,000 human-rights violators from around the world live in the United States. Torturers, death-squad leaders, and human-rights criminals who seek refuge in the United States have nothing to fear -- except their victims and former State Department official Richard Krieger.
